His golden moment with M. Mouse

PLEASANTON — Grant Skuse finally got his wish after 20 years.

Skuse, a barber for 50 years in San Francisco, was a pioneer in animal behavior.

He debunked the myth that when a cat meets a canary, the canary winds up inside the cat.

He trained a cat to shake hands with people while a canary perched on the cat's head. The fact this was accomplished in his barber shop along with a few mice and rats to round out the entourage made for good newspaper copy back in 1957. And after that, Skuse was on his way to a tiny niche among the famous.

Macy's department store featured his "barbershop circus." Life and Look, those giants of photojournalism in the 1950's, sent their best photographer and spread Skuse and his pets around the world. Then, finally, the biggest compliment of them all: a command performance before 40 million children in the form of a four minute filmed appearance on the Mickey Mouse Show.

Hayakawa on Lab 'turmoil'— did he say it?

SACRAMENTO — U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.) has backed off from a statement he reportedly made earlier this month in defense of his move that struck down a collective bargaining provision for Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employes.

Harvey Yorke, public information officer in the senator's Sacramento office, told The Times yesterday that a statement attributed to Hayakawa, in which the senator was quoted as saying he saw no evidence of employe "turmoil" in his recent visit to the Lawrence Lab that would justify the collective bargaining provision, was a "working paper" written by an unknown legislative aide. Yorke added that Hayakawa had neither seen nor approved the document.

On Tuesday, Yorke said that the senator's visit late last year to the Lawrence Lab did not include any communication with employe groups or their representatives.

The controversial statement issued by Hayakawa's office April 5, which the senator claims he did not see or approve prior to its release, stats: "I have visited this laboratory recently and I found no evidence of the turmoil and strife that was brought forward as a justification for this (legislation)."

But if Hayakawa talked with no rank and file employes during his visit, he would have effectively been shielded from such "evidence."

Martin Gottlieb, a free-lance reporter covering Washington politics who wrote the orginal article, said yesterday that Hayakawa had indeed seen and approved the statement before its issuance.

Gottlieb was given the statement over the phone by Elvira Orley, legislative director for Sen. Hayakawa, he said yesterday.

VMH's big step up in X-ray work

LIVERMORE — Valley Memorial Hospital will be able to offer a sophisticated new form of X-ray, thanks to a $400,000 piece of equipment being installed now.

It's the computerized axial tomography (CAT) X-ray scanner, which arrived Tuesday after a slow trip across the country from its East Coast manufacturing point. Few East Bay hospitals own the piece of equipment — in fact, its purchase is limited by the state to a few selected facilities.

The CAT scanner's arrival marked a triumph on two counts. First, it will bring both prestige and extra business to the Livermore hospital as physicians from outside the Valley send their patients here for delicate diagnostic procedures.

Second, it marks the successful conclusion of negotiations between a group of local doctors, who bought the machine, and the Valley Memorial Hospital board, who committed the money to house the scanner.

The new technique of computerized tomography can perform scans of whole sections of all parts of the body, including soft tissue such as organs, which are difficult or impossible to picture by conventional X-ray methods.

The scanner can quickly and painlessly detect tumors and other abnormalities as well as aid in diagnosing accident victims who have suffered severe injuries.

According to VMH radiologists, the scanner will be in operation by May.

Komandorski refurbishing plan costs $7 million

PLEASANTON — Thorough refurbishing of Komandorski Village would cost approximately the same or possibly more than tearing it down and building anew, Housing Authority Commissioners learned last night.

Total price for refurbishing the 170-unit project would be $7,585,000 or $50,570 per unit, according to consultant Dan Vandament.

By contrast, new housing would cost an estimated $7,260,000, including inflation costs, said Vandament. Adding a 10 per cent contingency factor to that estimate brings the price to $7,986,000. The same 10 per cent contingency added to the refurbishing estimate would bring that figure to $8,344,000.

One problem in doing refurbishing is that existing rooms would have to be expanded to meet federal rehabilitation standards, said housing authority executive secretary Michael Parsons.

Another problem is the maintenance of the old buildings, which are inefficient for energy conservation, said Parsons. Quoting from the report he noted that the walls of the old World War II housing project lose 4.5 times as much heat as they would if they were insulated. Improving this is especially important in the light of President Carter's recent national message on energy, said Parsons.

Several citizens who have advocated refurbishing as a method of saving federal tax money were in the audience last night. The cost comparison report was released during the meeting and the citizens will need time to read the 16-page document before commenting on it.

One of the citizens present, Don Savery, told The Times that he wondered how a developer in Vallejo recently refurbished a similar World War II project and sold the units as condominiums for prices ranging from $18,000 to $22,000, while the housing authority consultants estimated $50,000 a unit for rehabilitation at Komandorski Village.

Some of the larger costs in the refurbishing estimate include $1,275,000 to enlarge the buildings and add windows; $98,000 for new streets and sidewalks; $750,000 to rewire the buildings; $675,000 to replumb them; $900,000 to reinforce the framing and $380,000 for insullation.

Vandal proof lights break in the crate

LIVERMORE — The first of the new "vandal proof" lights has been erected at the entrance to Leahy Square, but Housing Administrator Bob Suckling is shaking his head with apprehension.

Six sodium vapor lights and poles had been ordered from Westinghouse for a three to six month test of their durability before replacing all 34 lights at the low income housing project. However, Suckling said when the packages were opened, three of the lights were either chipped, cracked or broken.

"We asked for lexan, a tough plexiglass," he said, "but instead got a pyrex-type glass."

The new light stands 22 feet high and casts a warm amber oval pool of light, which Suckling calls "fine."

"The residents like it and it sure brings the kids out to play at night."

One complete light, housing and pole costs $170 plus taxes and shipping and the other five will go up as soon as possible, he said.

"I hope the kids don't see it as a challenge to throw rocks or practice with their BB guns," said the housing administrator, who recalled problems with vandalism since the housing project opened in May 1973.

"Two days after we moved in a light in front of the office was busted," he said. Back then the globular plastic lights could be "bounced on the ground like a basketball and nothing would happen to them."

Then, after the sun's rays and the cold of night attacked the fixtures, said Suckling, they began to crack and lose their durability.

Some of the original globes were replaced with ones that were metal on top and plastic on the bottom,

Historic home burns

Fire ravaged a 93-year-old Livermore home on South S Street early yesterday morning, burning through the top floor and roof.

Officials said the blaze at 117 South S St. broke out about 1:30 Wednesday morning. It apparently started on the first floor next to the furnace, and shot upward through the second floor and roof.

Mainly water and smoke damage was reported on the first floor.

No one was injured.

Three alarms were rung as some 35 fire department personnel spent four hours fighting the fire.

Investigators estimate roughly $50,000 worth of damage. to the historic home.

They still have not officially pegged the cause of the blaze.

An investigation is continuing.

Carter's energy cuts

President Carter asked Congress Wednesday night to approve a national energy policy that raises prices and taxes for energy and automobiles to encourage conservation of vanishing resources.

He urged enactment of legislation that would tax gas-guzzling autos anywhere from $449 for 1978 low-mileage models up to $2,488 for 1985.

And he asked the lawmakers to approve a plan that would add about 7 cents a gallon to the cost of gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products by 1980 through a series of taxes on crude oil.

Ex-presidential hopeful faces court, loss of job

DUBLIN — "Mr. Carter is not legally the President of the country," said Richard C. Collins, a San Ramon postal employe charged with violating the Hatch Act.

The case of ex - presidential candidate Collins has finally made it to the courts. He is summoned to appear May 12 at the Federal Building in San Francisco.

He faces charges levied by the Civil Service Commission for being a post office employe while campaigning for office.

Collins said in outlining his defense Wednesday night that he does not have an attorney. His defense is based on the allegation that President Carter has invalidated the oath of office.

He said, "it just doesn't jive. It makes a a liar out of the man taking the oath."

Collins also said that the biggest argument against him is the fact that precedents have been established.

If Collins is found guilty, he could lose his job with the postal department. He has written a letter to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance warning him that any "negotiations or contracts made by Carter will become null and void should he succeed."

Collins said that Carter should "clean up the political process so it works for the people instead of a select few."

In 1976 Collins sent a bill to President Ford for $2 million. He said that is what Ford spent in tax dollars to support his campaign.

WEATHER

Fair through Friday in the Valley but patchy morning low clouds. A little cooler days. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs in the 70s. Westerly winds 10 to 20 mph afternoons.

When a sneeze is in the breeze

What'll you have: Cat hair? Pollen? Perfume?

Aaah - CHOO!

One person's dessert is another one's hives, a physician and a respiratory therapist assured their sniffling audience yesterday at a free lecture in the Family Medical Center, San Ramon.

With exposure, a sensitive person may start itching from eyeshadow or sneezing on a feather pillow. Much explanation, little consolation was offered allergy sufferers by Dr. George Stahl, an ear, nose and throat specialist, and Barry Westling, head of Valley Memorial Hospital's respiratory therapy department.

Allergy - of - the - Month, they said, is probably hay right now, or cottonwood, grass or oak. But people who have an excess of Immune Globulin E (known flippantly as IGE by non - sufferers) actually have a too - sensitive immune system . These unfortunates, about one person in five, may react to almost anything after one or repeated exposures (the more exposures, the more likely a reaction is).

Just as if it's fighting off an infection, the IGE substance in the blood creates an antibody. Chemicals such as histamine form, inappropriately mobilizing the body's defenses against a harmless irritant — house dust, animal hair, even metal.

The tendency to be allergic is inherited, but specific allergies develop only after exposure — usually, repeated — to certain substances, Dr. Stahl explained.

He added that moving from one area to another probably changes the form the allergy will take but

"She specifically refused to release it until he (Hayakawa) read it," Gottlieb said. Orley took the statement to Hayakawa, who was in a budget committee hearing, and had the senator read it and approve it before release, he said.

Yorke said he talked with Hayakawa personally Tuesday, at which time the first-term senator denied prior knowledge or endorsement of the statement.

Orley is not familiar with the "process" of releasing statements to the press, Yorke said, which accounted for the mix-up.

Hayakawa opposed the collective bargaining procedure provision because it singled out the Lawrence Lab from among nine university campuses and four research laboratories for special consideration in "dictating how the labor relations for a small group of public employes must be handled if their employer is to receive Energy Research and Development Administration funds," Yorke said. —by Bill Cauble

Binding arbitration, it was the key to Murray settlement

Terms of the 1977-78 Murray Teachers Association contract proposal ask that, at the third step of grievance procedures, full binding arbitration be in effect.

With this exception, albeit a key one, the proposed binding arbitration of grievance procedure to be sought by Murray teachers in 1977-78 is largely the same as that in effect currently.

Though teachers feel the transfer policy and length of work day are of crucial concern to them now, it was the pivotal question of binding arbitration that caused negotiations last fall and this past winter to drag on for months.

Wording in the teacher contract proposal now says that "If the grievant is not satisfied with the decision rendered at Level (step) II, they may submit a request in writing within 10 days to the superintendent for binding arbitration.

"An impartial arbitrator shall be selected jointly by the grievant (teacher) and the district within 10 days after the receipt of the written request for arbitration. The fees and expenses of the arbitrator, and a court reporter, if required by the arbitrator, shall be shared equally. Any additional expenses shall be borne by the party incurring the expense(s).

"The rules of the American Arbitration Association shall govern the arbitration. The arbitration shall have no authority to add to, delete, or alter any provisions of this agreement or district policies, but shall limit the decision to the application and interpretation of their provisions.

"After hearing the evidence, the arbitrator shall submit his findings and recommendations in writing to the Board of Trustees and to the grievant.

"The arbitrator's decision shall be binding on both parties."

Under the section on "work day," the contract proposal states:

"Teachers shall be present at the school site not less than 15 minutes before the opening of their first session with the exception of those teachers who have been assigned to or are participating in other school activities.

"Every teacher shall be entitled to a daily, duty free, uninterrupted lunch period. The teacher lunch period shall be equivalent to the students lunch period, exclusive of passing periods. Other employes shall be entitled to a daily, duty free, uninterrupted lunch period of not less than 40 consecutive minutes. Every employe shall receive a minimum of one 10-minute break every two hours, including those teachers assigned to yard duty.

"Employes shall not be required to attend more than two evening meetings per school year. These two mandatory evening meetings shall be one back-to-school night and one open house night per school year.

"The work day shall include reasonable time to fulfill professional duties. The district and the association recognize that fulfillment of professional duties sometimes require that employes work at home.

"School department heads shall receive one additional preparation period per day.

"An employe shall be allowed, upon approval, up to one hour early release from his/her teaching assignment without loss of pay or sick leave if another staff member agrees to cover the employes assignment."

Teachers are also asking for a calendar of 178 days, including 175 teaching and three non-teaching days.

They ask that the 1976-77 salary schedule be increased to reflect the March 1976 to March 1977 cost of living increase as indicated by the Consumer Price Index for the San Francisco Bay Area, plus 5 per cent salary.

Barber's private screening

And that brings us to the consummation of Skuse's 20 year dream. After selling the barber shop where his little menagerie and its star cat, Peter, was filmed, Skuse moved to Pleasanton. But he has longed to see that Mickey Mouse Club film because of all the satisfaction he and so many children got from Peter, who died a few years ago.

But the Walt Disney organization is strict about letting its films out of the archives. Skuse tried for many years to get the film, but to no avail.

Then one day, a former employe of the Disney organization got in touch with his old bosses. He reminded them of a promise from a Disney official, now long dead, that Skuse could at least borrow that film for a while. The Disney people relented and the man obtained the film, along with another of his own father, whose model of "Old Ironsides" was featured on the Mickey Mouse show.

But the man didn't know where Skuse lived. He was about to return both films when he attended a press conference in San Francisco as part of his work in free lance film. There he met Skuse's son, and the rest is history.

Skuse and many delighted neighborhood children had a special screening at Skuse's home this week. At long last, a look at one of the finest moments in the lives of 87 year old Grant Skuse, Peter Cat, and those patient and beautiful canaries that flocked around them.

Din of critical comment quiets on Granada system

LIVERMORE — Controversial Granada High School will retire into the shadows now, after years in the hot glare of public scrutiny.

Supporters of the school's TUFOLD (Time Use For Optimum Learning Development) system, and a few detractors as well, heard the school board Tuesday night agree to keep the system as it is, working to improve but not replace it as had been earlier feared.

The board also agreed to stop asking for special reports on the state of Granada's educational health, since such reports singled out the 2,000 - student school and implied it was a trouble spot.

After years of continual criticism of Granada, the board (somewhat changed in character this spring with the addition of two trustees strongly in favor of Tufold, and elimination in the last election of the school's strongest critic) accepted principal Jack Snodgrass's assessment of the system as a serviceable alternative to the traditional block - scheduling.

Under TUFOLD, teachers decide day by day whether they want to offer a traditional - length class of about 50 minutes or whether they want to schedule long labs, so students can work on projects, or perhaps 20 - minute quiz periods or conference times.

In contrast, the traditional system sets each class period at the same length, regardless of the subject matter to be covered.

Language teacher Joe Medeiros, one of the originators of Tufold, spoke plainly to the board of his impressions of the TUFOLD controversy.

"When we (Granada High) started, it was the weird school of the district because all the communist teachers were there...Then, TUFOLD became the battering ram.

"I'd like to see you people say either you support the system, or you don't."

Trustee Jan Brice, who had spent a day at the school and quizzed numerous students and teachers about TUFOLD, offered her personal endorsement of the system.

Betty Carrell called it "unfair" to say the school board had not been in favor of TUFOLD. "I believe the board has always supported Granada and the students and teachers there," the board president asserted to groans from parents in the audience.

She added, to refute Granada claims of superior students, that if all the test results, scholarships and prizes won by students at both Livermore High and Granada were taken into account, the tally "would be pretty darn equal."

Principal Snodgrass promised another attempt, beginning next September, to provide block scheduling for students who did not do well with TUFOLD's flexible scheduling. He said the staff is also working on ways to reduce scheduling conflicts and to balance the number of classes offered throughout the school day to avoid the midday crunch being experienced now.

Kindergarten signups eyed in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — School administrators in the Pleasanton Joint School District will be keeping a sharp eye on kindergarten registration this week in light of staffing for next year.

Projected declining enrollment for 1977-78 dictates hiring less new teachers, yet the district doesn't want to pass up good kindergarten teacher candidates, and come up short when school starts in September.

Parents are urged to register their kindergarteners now. Registration will take place in five schools — Alisal, Fairlands, and Valley View Schools on Tuesday, April 26 and Vintage Hills and Walnut Grove on Wednesday, April 27, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Staff, including school nurses, will be available to assist with registration and answer questions.

Children must be 4 years and 9 months old on or before Sept. 1, 1977. Proof of age is required. State law also requires that before a child may be admitted to school, immunization against the following diseases must have been received: Diptheria, pertussis, tetanus (usually combined in DPT innoculation), polio and measles (the red, hard variety).

Registration forms are avalable at the schools for those wishing to pick them up before the registration dates. Call the closest elementary school if you have any questions.

Industry vs. fees, city dilemma

LIVERMORE — City council took a hard look Monday at the philosophy and mathematics behind development fees in an effort to entice new industry without sacrificing plans for water storage and improved sewer service.

Public Works Director Dan Lee submitted lengthy reports which suggest lowering sewer connection fees and storm drainage fees, recognizes already lowered water storage fees and adjusts upwards the inflation - boosted costs of developers' bedroom taxes and park fees.

Community Development Director Manny Gorland, long time advocate of drastically cutting "front end fees" which discourage industry from locating in Livermore, presented his own figures and asked for even further cuts.

Lee suggested lowering the sewer connection fee from $1,488 for a single family dwelling to $1,351. That figure could also be used for a small business. Gorland said the figure could be cut down to $757 because department of public works used figures for future sewage treatment trunk lines and reclamation duplicated efforts of the future export pipeline.

"If we reduce the fee to accommodate industry," said Lee, and don't collect enough to defray future costs, we won't have enough money to expand the water reclamation plant."

City Manager Bill Parness noted state and federal funding programs cannot always be depended on and agreed with Gorland several industries have rejected Livermore because of the high fees, described as highest in the Bay Area.

Councilman Marshall Kamena sparked interest in a new plan when he asked about possible effects of cutting the front end fees to industry by 50 per cent and amortizing the rest over five years.

"That would have a tremendous impact," said Gorland.

Councilman Dale Turner agreed, noting "a method of amortizing would give Manny a sales method to attract business."

"I personally would publicize it," said Gorland, obviously delighted at the prospect.

Mayor Helen Tirsell, who reminded council of Livermore's "pay as you go" philosophy, noted how other communities subsidize industry's connections ("which makes ours look higher") and said amortization appealed to her also.

Water storage fees, placed in a fund to eventually construct a two million gallon tank for use on peak usage days, have already been cut by approximately 41 per cent, according to Lee.

Gorland said the Industrial Advisory Board suggested replacing that particular front end fee with a 30 per cent surcharge on current industrial water bills.

City staff was instructed to refine the figures discussed in the study session and place the item on a council agenda in two weeks for a decision.

Flap over county newsletter

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Most, but not all, registered voters in the county will get two newsletters each year from their county supervisor.

Those left out, constituents of Second District Supervisor Charles Santana, were at the heart of a temper strewn, heated debate between Santana and fellow supervisor Fred Cooper.

With a bare three member majority, the board this week approved legislation authorizing up to two newsletters per supervisor per year.

Santana, who last week thought it sounded like a good idea, changed his mind and joined supervisor Joseph Bort in opposing the motion.

His share of the $66,000 yearly cost should go to mental health, Santana said.

But an hour later, when the Hayward representative asked the board to sponsor an incorporation questionnaire for the Ashland area of his district, Cooper jumped on him.

The questionnaire should come from Santana's newsletter fund, chided Cooper.

"Now wait a minute," Santana shot back. "We gave money to Dublin, Castro Valley and now San Lorenzo for their incorporation study. I just want to send out a questionnaire to get some feedback from the people in the Ashland area."

He said an attempt to survey people in person had already failed.

But the cover letter to the questionnaire will come from Santana's office, said Cooper. Thus someone outside Santana's office should check the letter's content, he suggested.

"I'm familiar with questionnaires," Cooper said, hinting the cover letter might violate the newsletters "non-political" intent.

"You're treading on thin ice, Cooper," roared Santana. "Maybe the chairman of this board (Santana) should check on all those letters coming out of your office to see if they reflect the board's policies."

A compromise offer by Bort that would have authorized up to $1,000 to be spent by Santana's office for the questionnaire failed to win any support from the adamant Cooper.

"Forget it!" shouted Santana. "I don't want anything from this board."

Supervisors try again on night meetings

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County supervisors will re - open their experiment with night meetings for three months this year, but the program will be more intense the second time around.

An earlier stab at evening sessions about 18 months ago failed. At that time, the board held one night meeting per month.

But under the new proposal passed on a close, 3-2 vote, all board meetings in the 90-day trial period will be held at night.

The plan will not be implemented pending a cost analysis by county administrator Loren Enoch, and clarification on meetings requiring public notice.

Board of supervisors clerk Jack K. Pool said the board has scheduled set items through August.

Supervisors Fred Cooper and Joseph Bort voted against the change. Valerie Raymond of Livermore, Charles Santana of Hayward, and the bill's author, John George of Berkeley, were in favor of it.

Raymond and George made campaign pledges of making board meetings more accessible to the public through night sessions.

Cooper said the last experiment did not justify the cost.

Santana, the swing vote, said he would not vote for a one night per month trial because "it only confuses people. They don't know when we're meeting."

Bort claimed the "expense of operating government will go up considerably. However, if the majority votes, I'll be here."

Add safety to general plan

PLEASANTON — The city left something important out of its general plan — a state mandated safety element — the president of the Valley's League of Women Voters told the city council last week.

Margaret McClelland urged the council to make the safety element a top priority. Although some of the flood and earthquake dangers are mentioned in elements which are in the city's general plan, that document has no discussion of fire hazards or ways to mitigate them, she said.

"Similarly, there is no mention about evacuation routes or emergency plans, whether the hazard is fire or seismic activity," said McClelland.

"The League recognizes that the seismic element is a bare-bones description of the local problems," said McClelland. "A considerable amount of work needs to be done to make this into a workable element of the plan. Nonetheless, at least it exists. A safety element does not exist and the general plan is incomplete without it."

"At this time, when you are reviewing next year's budget," said McClelland, "we hope that you will give serious consideration to including the necessary funds to write a safety element and thus complete the general plan."

Budget sessions

PLEASANTON — The city council set four work sessions to go over the proposed 1977-78 budget Tuesday night.

The sessions will be held at 7 p.m. May 2; 7 p.m. May 4; 7:30 p.m. May 5 and 9 a.m. May 7. If all goes according to schedule and work sessions are concluded May 7, there will be a public hearing on the budget May 9.

Acting City Manager Alan Campbell, describing himself as a caretaker while the council searches for a permanent city manager, has brought forth a stand pat budget calling for no tax increase. However, there is a $178,000 deficit, which could be made up by shifting around various state and federal revenues.

It's also possible to raise $45,000 more by hiking taxes another three cents, the maximum increase allowed Pleasanton this year by state law. Campbell doesn't advise the increase. The budget figures do not reflect any city salary increases which are in the process of negotiation.

Typing begins

LIVERMORE — The typing of the city budget got under way yesterday.

Finance Director George Nolan said the 180 page document which lists city hall's desires for income and spending next year was handed over to account clerk Barbara Cardoza for the annual chore.

Nolan said the number of pages will probably shrink with some use of modifications in style and format. Cardoza has been typing the budget for most of her 13 years with the city, said Nolan.

The bottom line figures remain unpublicized, though, until City Manager Bill Parness is ready to present the document to city council for official review.

"We expect to have it ready for public release the middle or latter part of next month," said Nolan.

The current budget of $14.3 million includes $7.4 million for operating expenses and $6.9 million for capital improvements. No sum has been mentioned yet for this year, but Parness has painted an austerity picture when describing the budget.

Finding the best fabric buys

Americans spend more than $70 billion a year on clothing, but shoppers may find that selecting the best buy is harder than trying to predict next year's skirt lengths.

The variety of fabrics, finishes and styles van turn shopping into a confusing experience, however.

Do you want a natural fiber or a man-made one? Both have advantages and disadvantages; it depends on what you're looking for.

Will a preshrunk garment get smaller after you wash it? Yes.

What's the difference between woolen yarns and worsted ones? The woolens are softer; worsteds are smoother.

Here is a guide to some of the terms:

NATURAL FIBERS

Cotton is absorbent, washable and of medium strength. It wrinkles and shrinks easily unless treated..

Linen is cool, strong and crisp-looking. It does not pick up lint. It washes easily, but unless treated, it wrinkles and shrinks.

Silk is luxurious, wrinkle resistant and strong, but is sensitive to sun and perspiration and usually is not washable. White silk yellows with age.

Wool is warm, strong, durable, resilient, naturally wrinkle resistant and easy to dye. It does, however, shrink very easily.

SYNTHETICS

Virtually all the man-made fibers are washable; other characteristics vary.

Acetate is soft and silky, inexpensive, resistant to wrinkles, moths and mildew, but may dissolve if you spill nail polish or remover, perfumes and many other solvents on it. Triacetate has many of the same characteristics, but is less sensitive to heat.

Acrylicis wool-like in texture and warmth, and furry in appearance. It is quick drying and resists wrinkles and sun. Modacrylic is similar, but has the added quality of being flame resistant.

Nylon is the strongest of all. It is light, dries quickly and doesn't shrink, but it can develop static electricity unless treated.

Polyester is easy to wash and dry and super-resistant to wrinkles. It also holds pleats and creases well and is often blended with cotton for permanent press garments.

Rayon is soft and comfortable, highly absorbent and cheap. It also is durable and easy to dye.

SHRINKING

Except for rayon, synthetics generally do not shrink at all. The situation with natural fibers varies.

The word "preshrunk" means what it implies — almost. It does not mean that the fabric has been preshrunk completely. The word frequently will be followed by a statement saying how much more shrinkage is expectable. If there is no statement, be prepared for it to shrink at least 3 per cent.

Sanforized refers to a patented process to control shrinking of cotton and linen articles. Again, you can expect some further shrinkage, but it should be only 1 per cent or less.

If there is no label statement, you can expect shrinkage of about 5 per cent. Knitted, napped and sheer fabrics will shrink even more.

CARE

The phrase "wash and wear" means you should be able to wash an item and wear it with little or no ironing, but some garments don't live up to the label very well. The product may have achieved its wash-and-wear status one of three ways: by a resin finish added to the fabric to reduce wrinkling it may still need ironing, through a chemical modification of the fiber or through a mixture of cotton and a synthetic which is naturally wrinkle resistant.

Drip dry means that the garment must be hung up to dry while wet. The runoff helps remove the wrinkles.

If you want to be able to do your laundry by machine, look for lables that say "automatic wash and wear," "permanent press," or "durable press." Cotton and polyester blends generally are permanent press, making them easy to care for. They also are difficult to alter, however, because hems and pleats are permanent.

Skirt Lengths Offer Choice

The mini, midi, maxi confusion of the past decade appears to have reached an unexciting compromise: dresses and skirts in all size ranges now hover about the knee.

While many fashion experts claim that this length is the most flattering for women of all ages, shapes and sizes, most concede that young leggy women do look quite attractive in shorter lengths. Although a recent survey of New York students studying fashion indicated that the timing may not yet be right to bring back the mini, 28 per cent stated that they would definitely buy it and 25 per cent were undecided.

Since short skirt lengths (along with jeans) are one of the few looks ever to be universally accepted by junior customers in particular, it seems that more of the junior dress industry should be willing (and able) to give them what they want.

Fashion show displays colorful ebony style

Silk gowns flowed in colors like fuchsia, ultra violet and vintage grape at the 19th annual Ebony Fashion Fair this month at the Oakland Paramount.

In addition to the 200 garments modeled by 12 mannequins in an incredibly paced two-hour show, the fashions in the audience were almost as noteworthy. Vividly colored cocktail dresses and evening pajamas and stylish pin-striped breasted suits teamed with fedoras created a gala atmosphere reminiscent of the Academy Awards presentation.

Sponsored locally by the Oakland Bay Area Chapter of the Links, Inc., the traveling show is a public service project benefiting various charites, according to Production Coordinator Robert Fentress.

Entitled "The Care - Free Life," the show featured designer clothes with folkloric looks as well as lots of slinky, slithery evening fashions in jersey, crepe de Chine and silk. Styles were either loose and flowing or quite form-fitting, defining the body. Natural fabrics were all the rage. Although there were a a handful of ready-to-wear designs, most of the fashions were high-priced couturier items selected for panache. Givenchy designed tiered black taffeta skirt. John Anothy an 18-karat gold threader evening pajama and Yves St. Laurent, the Russian peasant costume that created fashion headlines last fall. If you have to ask how much these garments cost. You can't afford them. The Yves St. Laurent number sold for a non - peasant price of $5,000.

Many of the garments could be worn in several ways. A reversible racoon and suede coat, for instance. Or a hooded dress with a draped cowl. Or the classic drape dress, which is nothing more than an oblong of fabric that can be draped in a multitude of ways.

The models were striking and moved beautifully, their rich coloring providing a perfect, canvas for the highly styled designer clothes. Twelve models, including two men and 10 women were selected from over 500 applications in Chicago. Women must be at least five feet eight and wear a size 8, 9, or 10. Male models must be at least six feet. The models earn $250 a week with all expenses paid during the touring show which began in September and closed this month.

Models, wardrobe mistresses and productions people have traveled throughout the country in a chartered Greyhound bus. Among the prominent black models who have appeared in the Ebony Fashion Fair are Judy Pace of New York and Audrey Adams, prominent San Francisco model who appeared on our fashion pages last week.

The show has been a sellout according to Fentress and is attracting more males and white people than ever before. In fact, one of the models, Sharon Fedor, is white.

Dave Rivera, musical director, set the pace for the fast-moving show with uptempo music. Models waltzed — or hustled — in, singly or in pairs on a stage framed by designer sketh sketches on portable screens.

Model-commentator Shayla Simpson delivered a perhaps too theatrical pattern with overly stylized presentation. She rolled her Italian r's a bit too pretentiously for our taste when pronouncing names like Albert Capraro. Giorgio Sant'Angelo and Oscar de la Renta. Her suggestive comments about the revealing clothes got tiresome by the second act.

Nonetheless, it is rare that we get a presentation of so many couturier fashions that deict the latest fashion trends throughout Europe and America. And it is nice know that fashion as an art form is thriving and well, along with St. Laurent, whose wedding dress created the grand finale, in true couturier style.

Bridal Gowns Show Nostalgia Look

Cotton lace in the new candlelight shade decorates a long-sleeved high-necked bridal gown accented with satin ribbon. From JCPenney, SunValley Mall.

By Eric Rahkonen

By JANET GHENT

Today's bridal fashions reflect the current trends and a new variety in fabric, color and line. Brides, bridesmaids and mothers of the bride and groom can choose stylish gowns that can be worn again —or splurge on extravagant creations embroidered with lace and pearls.

JCPenney covered the spectrum in contemporary bridal fashions at a show last week entitled, "A Dream Come True." Fashion Director Darcy Anderson commentated on fashions ranging from the traditional chantilly lace gown to a modern two-piece gown with removable cape that reveals an elegant evening dress with spaghetti straps.

Flowers were everywhere — in bouquets, in the hair and on picture hats. Cayford's Florist of Pleasant Hill provided the floral arrangements as well as a complimentary rose to each of the guests who surrounded the runway in the JCPenney bridal salon.

Bridesmaids' gowns included the popular dotted swiss styles for garden weddings, tiered looks in organza and chiffon and the new Qiana jersey gowns. One of our favorites was a sunshine yellow jersey halter gown topped with an airy cape of floral printed organza. The bridesmaid completed the look with a flower in her hair.

Too often the mothers of the bride and groom have been the neglected members of the wedding party. Happily, new designs avoid the matronly look. Gowns in Qiana, crepe and chiffon with complimentary jackets, capes and stoles provide a high fashion look for this special occasion. And these gowns can be worn again. We particularly liked the misty two-tiered dress in pale apricot floral chiffon accented with a soft cape-like jacket.

Nina Daby of Sherman Clay played the organ at the bridal show, setting the mood for the gowns, which were worn by models with Madeline Model Agency. Bridal consultant Betty Reed assisted Anderson in putting together a show that not only showed a wide range in styles but also provided a good selection of reasonably priced gowns for budget - conscious brides and bridesmaids.

The tiered look in an apricot floral chiffon gown with its own caped jacket provides a complimentary look for the mother of the bride or groom.

Italian designs reveal chic

Italian designers have reinterpreted sporty looks in soft fabrics and brand new colors, according to Women's Wear Daily. Here are some of the keynote themes from the Milan ready to wear show held recently.

In general, the look is casual but sophisticated. Accessories really pull the look together. Tough chic is out, but mantailoring with soft feminine accents is in.

Blouses are the most important part of this new look. They are feminine with lots of detailing —collars are scalloped, pleated or ruffled. Blouses are fastened with tiny seed pearl buttons, string bow ties and satin ribbons. Colors include shell pink, flesh and linden greens in soft brushed cottons and cotton velour as well as the ever - popular crepe de chine.

Skirts emerge with soft fullness, drawstring hiplines or soft pleats below a smooth - fitting hip yoke. The newest pants are skin - tight black velvet worn with thigh high black suede boots. Most pants are slim and tucked into boots, often with midriff - high waists and slightly gathered hips.

Gianni Versace emerges as one of the most sought - after designers, creating a medieval costume of the blouson tunic over wool leggings.

Spring fashions at Magnin's

The total look in fashion involves more than clothing said Barbara Szpak, merchandising editor for Mademoiselle, at a recent fashion show at I. Magnin's Walnut Creek store.

Fashion involves coordinating make-up, hair style, clothing and accessories to create an individualized look, she explained. The fashion show, held in conjuction with the 10th anniversary of I. Magin's Walnut Creek store, featured make-up and hair artists in addition to a bevy of smart spring fashions.

The big looks for spring are bold primary colors, teamed with brights or whites, in sundresses, sportswear and coordinates. Visors and sailor hats complete the sporty look and also protect the face from the rays of the sun.

"Every woman should have one good classic blazer," said Szpak. "Skirts should be slightly below the knee. Particularly popular for a tailored town look is the one-color look from head to toe, with a man-tailored blazer, vest and split skirt ensemble." Other popular fashion accessories highlighted in the show include flowers, worn as dress trims as well as in the hair, and big sunglasses. Sandals and espadrilles coordinate beautifully with summery styles in both sportswear and evening wear.

Fashion show guests were treated to birthday cake and punch after the show. In addition, several door prizes were presented.

Buyers Discuss New Paris Styles

By JANET GHENT

Area fashion directors and buyers who attended the Paris fall fashion shows predict a new romantic trend for the coming seasons.

Sonia Caproni, fashion director for I.Magnin, notes the popularity of the "oversized men's wear look," with a feminine accent. "We're going through a soft period, with no hard-edged tailoring. Culottes continue to be popular and vests are worn under jackets or over coats, but its not a costumey or folkloric look."

Caproni remarks that blazers are shown with the new tiered skirts popularized by St. Laurent, Givenchy Chanel and the Italian designers. Blouses are soft and feminine, with silk being the most popular fabric.

Shoes include very high heels for evening wear with boots and flat patents shown for daytime, Caproni adds.

Mary Hamilton, fashion director of Macy's, comments on the unusual color combinations like camel and shrimp or lime green and pastels, particularly pale pinks and blues; Caproni noticed a palette of reddened browns and monochromatic colors or blended shades as well as pastels.

Liz Conover, Bullock's merchandising manager for juniors and intimate apparel, did not attend the Paris shows. However, she says that the big trends for fall will include wool challis and dirndl skirts, big tops, including Shetland sweaters and unlined blazers as well as lumberjack plaid jackets, and pure silk blouses. She also says that women are gradually replacing their pantsuits with skirts. The new pants are narrower, worn tucked into boots and topped with big, blousy sweaters.

Serena Kokjer, buyer at Capwell's, says the shawl will be big news for fall, particularly in wool blend and challis fabrics, shown in plaids, paisleys and florals. At the Paris showings, shawls were worn at the waist or assymetrically draped on one shoulder, according to Kokjer. "The fabrics are clingy and drape nicely."

Kokjer says the new skirts and blouses provide a feminine alternative to the heavily tailored look. The blouses have full sleeves and mini-collars or no collar and the skirts are tiered. "I just bought a tiered skirt in Paris. I love it. I feel like a woman again," Kokjer says. She expects that the tiered skirts will be available here soon. Some have been ordered in Paris and others will be copied in America and in the Orient.

Designers Show New Silhouettes

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK—Paris designers have provided a good show, though no revolution, for hundreds of eager buyers from all over the world.

As always, the most talked about designers are Saint Laurent, Kenzo, Chloe and Sonia Rykiel.

Saint Laurent's new look is described as catchy and saleable. He plays up knits for the first time and devotes at least a third of his collection to them.

His newest look is a little smocked top, ruffled, very young and easy to wear. It hangs full from the shoulders and is worn over an even fuller skirt.

Chloe, designed by Karl Lagerfeld, is the high point of the collections. Lagerfeld, who has recently bought an antique castle in the French countryside and started collecting antique French furniture, has revived the days of Louis XV and XVI in all their glory.

He features plumed hats, gorgeous lace blouses and even satin knee britches with high-heeled boots.

Kenzo, who is less drastic than in former seasons, like the look of an oversize blazer, sometimes worn over a smaller jacket. His dresses are just below the knees and turned-back hems give some of them a harem shape.

Kenzo's young, bouncy balloon dresses have a turned-back hem, which gives them a harem shape. From the Paris Ready-to-Wear Show.

Karl Lagerfeld revives the 18th century with velvet knee britches and lace blouse in his Chloe collection shown in Paris recently.

Fashion expert comments

Hats reveal wearer's self

Gay, amusing, outrageous and beautiful, hats of the past contributed an important statement to the fashion picture. More than any other fashion accessuthe hat revealed its wearer's self-image — timid or self-assured, feminine or tailored conservative or frivolous, naive or knowledgable.

My own collection included samples frqm te '20s through the '50s . Most have ben given to m by Alice Link of Orinda and are custom-made. Only, an extrovert would wear the black and white checkered number. The large pink organza picture hat, which my mother purchased at a thrift shop in Pasadena, probably cost $150 when new.

The Edwardian period from 1900 to 1910 was surely the most exciting era for hats, which reached their zenith with great brimmed cartwheels crowned in ostrich plumes, flowers and ribbons. Though the large hats balanced out the slender silhouette typical of the era, women must have staggered under the weight of all that froufrou.

Milliners were also busy in the '20s, when women clipped their locks in a show of newly-won independence. Girdles were passe and the idal figure was flat-chested and boyish. The deep head - hugging cloche was a perfect foil for the short bobs and the shorter skirts.

During the '40s, women wore tiny sailor hats tiltd precariously over one eye. Sitting on top of a pompadour hairdo, the hats were held in place with an elastic cord that fitted around the back of the head. Hats were gay and just a bit absurd — a welcome relief from the masculine, skimpily-cut clothes resulting from wartime shortages. Government restriction L-85 officially limited the amount of fabric that could be included in a garment.

Christian Dior's New Look burst on the scene in 1947. It demanded hats, both large and small. The hemline dramatically dropped to below mid-calf. Skirts could be either slender or voluminous but the wearer had to girdle her waistline to obtain the correct silhouette. Tiny hats with veils were very popular with this new ladylike look.

But milliners met their Waterloo when hair stylists of the '60s created the bouffant. Back-combing lifted hair to great proportions, reminiscnt of Marie Antonette's fancy hairdo. False hairpieces were added to give extra height and fullness. First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy was accompanied by a hairdresser on her official trips. The hairdresser unwittingly stole the place of honor from the milliner because the bouffant hairdo offered no foundation for a hat.

Even in the late '60s, when hair styles became more natural, the average woman no longer felt the need to wear a hat for social occasions. In addition, the Roman Catholic Church permitted worshippers to go hatless.

Today hats have come back as a fashion accessory. Feminine, funky or tailored, the new spring hats team smashingly with the new sundresses. The popular visors and sailor styles are shown with casual fashions for sports and beachwear. Although today's woman is no longer required to wear a hat, she enjoys the luxury of choosing from a variety of sytles to suit her mood and her fashion image.

Avoid that which causes sniffles

doesn't get rid of the sensitivity.

How do you get relief? Avoidance is certainly the best method, the physician said.

If you're allergic to pollen in the air, stay indoors, preferably in an air - conditioned place in summer. In winter, a furnace filter will get rid of most of the pollen in the air passing through it. Electronic air purifiers also help a lot, he said.

If allergic to house dust, cover mattresses with plastic; keep the place dusted. If food allergies are the problem, just avoid the offending goodies or suffer the consequences.

When someone in the family has allergies, nobody should smoke or keep pets, the doctor suggested. Feather pillows, jute carpet pads and perfumed cosmetics are other common irritants.

Other ways of beating IGE: medicine to relieve symptoms; shots to lower a person's sensitivity level; and "good sense measures" like avoiding chills and watching your general health.

But what HAPPENS when your nose is stuffed up and you're coughing your stomach off? Respiratory expert Barry Westling had some impressive information about the plugged proboscis and bursting bronchials.

First, a good word for the schnozz which Dr. Stahl calls "one of the most hardworking organs in the body."

That couple of inches of cartilage and flesh, says Westling, filters incoming air, warms it to body temperature and humidifies it to nearly the 100 per cent relative humidity required by the lungs.

Your nose runs so much outdoors on a dry cold day because it's trying valiantly to moisten the air (which is coming in at perhaps 5 per cent humidity). It also stuffs up a bit in order to slow down the air passing through so it will warm up properly.

On to the amazing lungs, which can generate a 150 - miles - per - hour blast known as a cough.

Here, says Westling, is a fine network of airways which conduct air into the vital sacs which transfer oxygen to the bloodstream.

The airways — the bronchial tree — are lined with mucus to help collect irritants out of the air. However, too much mucus may be formed through an allergic reation, blocking the passage of air instead of assisting.

Luckily, most people need less than half their lung potential and can have a considerable amount of mucus before beginning to suffer from it. When things get serious, a respiratory therapist can thin out the mucus with drugs or an aerosal spray, so it can be coughed up easily; or show the patient how to lie in positions where the lungs will drain themselves.

Normally, fine hairs lining the lungs will push excess mucus out into the back of the throat where it can be coughed up. A warning: Smoking, which stimulates excess mucus, also paralyzes these hairs so they can't get rid of the glop which is preventing vital oxygen absorption.

If you think you may be allergic, the speakers suggest, see a doctor. Between a medical history, physical exam, lab tests and possible skin tests (which are not always reliable), you may be able to find out what's bugging you.

But it's up to you to avoid it.

Not guilty plea in cop car crash

LIVERMORE — Curtis Edward Blake, 38, 650 Brookfield Dr., Livermore, pleaded not guilty Monday to charges he intentionally backed his car into the car of a policeman who had just given him a ticket.

Livermore police officer Brian Woodard received minor neck injuries in the March 26 incident.

The officer reportedly recognized Blake as being a person with an allegedly revoked license and stopped him at Murrieta Boulevard and Portola Avenue. Instructing the defendent not to drive his car, the officer left, went around the block and stopped Blake again, this time citing him for driving with a revoked license.

Once in his police car, Woodard said, he "heard the screeching tires and saw Blake's car back up toward me at a very high rate of speed. Blake was looking directly over his right shoulder, staring right at me," said the police officer.

Blake is scheduled for a May 5 court appearance for scheduliction:

— Four Livermore men were scheduled to enter pleas April 25 on charges of growing marijuana in the home they share at 638 Colusa St.

Charged with having 15 potted plants and three baggies of marijuana are Jeff Alan McSharry, 20; James David McSharry, 22; Guy Thomas Gulutz, 25; and John Joseph Miller, Jr., 22.

— Carl Edison Betts, 32, of Oakland, was scheduled for a May 27 preliminary hearing on charges of possessing a stolen 38 caliber revolver while visiting Santa Rita prison March 21. The gun was reportedly found during a routine search at the gate.

— Michael Dennis Johnson, 31, of Hayward, pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges he stole a microwave oven from the closed concession building at Shadow Cliffs Park, setting off an alarm. He is scheduled for a May 3 court appearance to schedule a preliminary hearing.

— Norbert Huerta Martinez, 18, 8603 Galindo Dr., Dublin, pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges of possessing two stolen rings. He was arrested April 14 when police stopped four men in the park at Shannon Park Community Center and a pocket search netted a silver ring with a blue stone and a silver ring with flower designs.

One police officer recognized the rings as part of a reported burglary at a home on Galindo Drive April 12.

Martinez is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Mav 11.

A's Bill North tries to take out Brewer second baseman Don Money to prevent double play.

A's break loss streak

OAKLAND — Designated hitter Rich McKinney drove in a pair of runs with a single and homerun to lift the Oakland Athletics to a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers before 3,849 paid spectators Wednesday afternoon.

The win snapped a three-game losing string for the A's while putting an end to the surging Brewers, who had won five straight as the pace-setting club in the American League's East Division.

The game featured a pair of 2-0 pitchers in the A's Mike Torrez and the Brewers' lefthander Jerry Augustine, who under normal circumstances might have emerged with a 3-0 mark.

Instead, it went to Torrez, who suffered only one shaky inning while delivering a six-hitter. The big righthander struck out seven batters, two in the last inning to nail down his third triumph and he walked only two.

The A's jumped Augustine for a 2-0 lead in the bottom half of the first inning after Torrez set the visitors down in 1 - 2 - 3 order on fly balls to the outfield.

Leadoff man Bill North walked, but Augustine struck out Manny Sanguillen and retired Mitch Page on a ground ball for the second out. The Milwaukee southpaw, pitching carefully to Dick Allen, walked "Wampum" on four straight pitches. Then North stole third base and when catcher Charlie Moore's throw went past former A's third baseman Sal Bando, North scampered across home plate for a 1-0 Oakland edge.

The play advanced Allen to second base before McKinney laced a pitch in the gap between right and centerfield to bring in Allen.

Augustine settled down and allowed only two more hits, singles by Rob Picciolo and North, up to the sixth inning when McKinney unloaded his circuit clout high over the left field fence past the 335-foot marker.

The blow, McKinney's third homer of the season, broke up a 2-2 deadlock and the A's picked up an insurance run in the eighth frame on Allen's single and a double to deep right center by reserve catcher Jeff Newman. The extra base clout chased in pinch-runner Sheldon Mallory.

The Braves picked up single runs in the fourth and sixth innings before succumbing to McKinney's power thrust.

Their first tally was the result of a walk to Bando, who advanced to third on a single by Sixto Lezcano and scored on a sacrifice fly to right field by Don Money.

The Brewers tied it up in the sixth when Von Joshua, an Oakland product and former San Francisco Giants outfielder, doubled off the right field wall and scored on shortstop Robin Yount's single to right.

That was all for the Milwaukee tossers, who still head their division with a 7-3 record.

The A's enjoy a day off before taking on the incoming Chicago White Sox Friday night at 8 in the first of a four-game series that includes one day game Saturday and a doubleheader Sunday.

NL wrap-up

SF nips Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Rob Andrews' eighth inning single scored the game's only run and three San Francisco pitchers combined for a four - hitter as the Giants blanked the Houston Astros 1-0 Wednesday night.

The victory was the Giants' third in a row as the Astros lost their fifth straight.

Ed Halicki, 2-1, hurled the first seven innings for the Giants, allowing all four Astro hits. Randy Moffitt came on in the eighth, but needed help from Gary Lavelle in the ninth.

The Giants put runners in scoring position in three of the first six innings but failed to score. Gary Thomasson led off the San Francisco third with a walk and took second on Mike Sadek's grounder. But Halicki struck out and Derrel Thomas grounded out to end the inning.

Thomasson reached second again in the fifth on a one-out single and Sadek's grounder, but Lemongello retired Halicki on an inning-ending grounder.

Bill Madlock, who singled in his first three plate appearances, reached second base with two out in the sixth on a single and a balk by Lemongello. But Darrell Evans popped out to retire the side.

Cesar Cedeno doubled to lead off the Houston third and took third base on Jose Cruz' oneout grounder before Bob Watson ended the inning by flying out to left.

Cardinals 4, Mets 2 — Ted Simmons belted four RBI's to lead St. Louis past visiting New York.

Eric Rasmussen was the winning pitcher, throwing a six-hitter. Joe Madlock, now 0-2, received the defeat.

Three of Simmons' RBI's came on a home run in the sixth inning.

Phillies - Cubs — The Phillies - Chicago game at Wrigley Field was postponed after 4⅓ innings because of rain.

The Phillies were leading 4-1 at the time. No make - up date has been set.

LA outlasts Warriors

INGLEWOOD — The Los Angeles Lakers won the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Golden State Warriors, 115-106, here last night.

The contest was played before 15, 928 fans but more than 1,000 seats were empty.

The Warriors shot a phenomenal 69.2 percent in the first quarter, but good defensive pressure out high by guards Don Chaney, Lucius Allen and substitute Earl Tatum held Golden State to just 13 field goal tries.

With Los Angeles firing away at a respectable 48 percent, the Lakers' 9-7 edge in rebounding was not much of a factor as the hosts took a 28-26 lead at the break.

LA opened the game with a three - shot flury that ended in a Abdul Jabbar slam dunk. But Rick Barry came up with a couple of great jump shots — one slamming in off the glass from well past the top of the key — to give the Warriors the first of three first - period leads with 9:37 to go.

The Lakers got the lead back on an exchange of baskets and assists between Chaney and Abdul Jabbar. However, with 6:46 to play Jamaal Wilkes' 14-foot jumper put Golden State back ahead 14-13.

After the Lakers regained the lead again with a burst of six straight points, Barry again put the Warriors ahead, 22-21 on a fast-break lay-in after an assist from Wilkes.

With Los Angeles leading 37-32 in the second period a bizarre sequence of blocked shots, two by Jabbar and one each by the Warriors' Clifford Ray and Wilkes within a span of 32 seconds broke the quarter in two.

The Lakers seemed quite ready to blow the Warriors out in the next few moments and took a 43-35 lead on a 20-foot baseline jumper by rookie Tom Tom Abernathy.

But the Warriors with Barry hitting his implausible jumpers and Wilkes and Williams getting out on the front of fast breaks, Golden State cut the lead to two, 54-52 on a cross-under lay-in by Sonny Parker with two seconds left in the half.

The two teams meet again tomorrow at 8 p.m. here. The game will be broadcast on KNBR 680 and televised on KTVU, Channel 2.

Fergon wins Ping Classic

Even if Vicki Fergon doesn't qualify for the LPGA tour in July, she'll look forward to coming back to Castlewood Country Club as part of the the Group Four Women's Tour.

Especially after she won her first group four tournament yesterday at the $2,125 Ping Classic at Castlewood.

Fergon, an attractive - looking blonde from San Diego, fired a 15-over par 225 on Castlewood's tough hill course en route to a three-stroke win.

She was pleased. and ironically, surprised to say the least.

"I knew I had a pretty good chance of winning. It was in my mind all day," said Vicki, whose check of $450 pushed her seasonal winnings to $1,400. Vicki has been on tour since February.

"I just kept the ball in play all day with my three-wood," she said. "My swing was move and I didn't do anything different."

Fergon, who held a one-stroke advantage going into yesterday's final round, carded a five-over par 75 while her nearest challengers suprisingly faded.

Only Shannon Johnson, who played with Fergon Wednesday, gave the winner a go at it. And Johnson nearly pulled it off.

Johnson, who resides in Denver, came up with rounds of 36 and 37 yesterday for a three-over-par 73 after being back by five strokes before final round play. Johnson's 18-over par 228 brought her $350.

Donna Davis of Kileen, Texas, and Carol Dawson of Collingwood, Ontario, who were both one stroke behind Fergon Tuesday, finished third and seventh respectively. Other top winners, meanwhile included Vicki Tabor of Waco Texas, (230), Toni Black of Phoenix (231) and Mary Anne Stangleand (232) from Long Beach.

Dawson, Sue Parker, Robin Mead, Pam Moore, Ann Dana and Ingrid Gallo rounded out the top 12 money winners.

A total of 27 individuals particpated in the annual matches with the scores ranging from Fergon's 225 to Judy Allen's 273.

Ruffner impressive

Amador swimmers undefeated

Amador Valley remained undefeated and Granada's Steve Ruffner set a seasonal county-best despite his team's loss in East Bay Athletic League swimming action yesterday.

The Dons rolled over California, 121-40 to move their EBAL record to 4-0. Granada fell to once-beaten San Ramon, 99-67 in Livermore.

Ruffner recorded a brillant 1:00.7 in the 100-yard breaststroke, the fastest in Alameda County and second-fastest ever.

However, his individual brillance was not enough to offset the Wolves' balance and sophomore star Davitt Cunningham.

Cunningham won the 500-yard freestyle in a fine 4:52.8, took third in the 200-yard individual medley and swam a leg on the winning 4000yard freestyle relay team which recorded a 3:27.0.

Ruffner also took second in the 200-yard individual medley ahead of Cunningham.

The Wolf junior varsity had an even easier time, taking a 111-41 decision.

Danny Knauer sparked the Amador Valley victory with two victories. He won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:43.0 and the 500-yard freestyle in 49.5. He also swam a leg on the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team. The time was 3:37.9.

Bill Burns also did an outstanding job for the Dons.

Burns won the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:07.9, was second in the 100-yard freestyle and swam on the winning 200-yard medley relay team which had a 1:46.5. Steve Pratuch, Edmond Carter and Mark Allen were the other members of the medley relay team.

Carter won two events, the 100-yard butterfly (56.2) and the 100-yard backstroke (1:00.9).

Kevin Kurtz didn't take an individual first but was second in the 100-yard butterfly, third in the 500-yard freestyle and swam on the freestyle relay squad.

California won two varsity events, the 200-yard individual medley and the diving competition.

Amador Valley rolled in the junior varsity meet, 115-40.

The Dons won nine of the 10 events contested in the frosh-soph meet. Jim Lara took a first in the 100-yard breaststroke and swam on both winning relay teams.

Amador Valley will risk its undefeated EBAL season the next two weeks when it meets Livermore and San Ramon.

Glad nine in key tilt

HAYWARD — Chabot College's baseball team faces a tough task in its battle to make the Golden Gate Conference playoffs when it hosts league-leading San Mateo at 3 p.m. today here.

The Glads, 8-7-2 in GGC action compared to fifth-place West Valley's 9-8, will have to stop one of the most potent attacks in the GGC.

If Chabot and West Valley tie for fourth the Gladitators will go to the playoffs because they because they beat the Vikings twice.

In action Tuesday, the Glads stayed alive by nipping West Valley, 9-8 behind some brillant relief pitching by Ron Rounds.

Rounds relieved starter Bunky Svendsen after seven inning and fanned three batters while walking none. He only allowed two hits and gave up no runs.

Homers by John Cook and Rob Jessen (his fifth of the season) helped them take a 9-4 advantage after the seventh inning.

After a terrible start, the Glads have won seven of their last nine contests.

LPGA back at Round Hill

It's official!

Golf is back where it belongs.

"It's absolutely great to have the LPGA returning to Alamo," an enthusiastic Jay Bedsworth said Tuesday following a formal press conference announcing "The $100,000 Sarah Coventry," scheduled for Sept. 19-25 at Round Hill Country Club.

"Sarah Coventry (Jewelry) and Round Hill are going to put on one of the greatest women's professional goft tournaments ever," the General Manager of Round Hill observed.

And two individuals who will return among the expected thousands in Alamo in mid-September are television star Greg Morris and pro golfer Jan Stephenson, who spoke to the rather large gallery of press members.

"This tournament can't help but be a success. I'm really excited about it," explained Stephenson, an extremely attractive blue-eyed Australian brunette, who wore a gray pant suit with a flower in her hair.

The Bay Area is a unique place and Round Hill has a fine reputation. I've heard a lot about it. It's a tight course they say."

Ironically, Stephenson won last years Sarah Coventry tournament held in Naples, Fla. She's looking forward to Alamo, too.

"I love the competition," Jan said. "I'm a very emotional and aggressive player."

Stephenson, who played last Sunday (on tour) at Hilton Head, S.C., spoke highly of Alamo.

"This is a great place. I wish I had taken up residency here instead of Palm Springs," she said.

Morris, the Tournament Chairman, appeared especially slender in a blue sports suit. He acknowledged he was the voice in the Purina cat food commercials. You know, that say, "Chow, chow, chow ..."

But Morris, who arrived nearly an hour late "because my chauffeur went South instead of North" — wasn't doing the chow-chow-chow for laughs.

"I'm proud they asked me to be chairman," remarked Morris, late of the CBS series Mission Impossible. "It's bound to be a great deal of fun. I hope it's the biggest tournament for the LPGA."

Morris said he's only been playing golf for a little while, but gave two reasons why he "loves" the game so much.

"It's the people I play with, and my agent can't track me down on the 14th hole," he laughed.

Morris, a particularly exciting individual who's appeared in six motion pictures, said the reaction from women pro's concerning the move to Alamo has been extremely positive.

"There's a lot of girls on the tour who have played here before," offered Morris. "They have personally told me they're glad it's here instead of Naples. A lot are opposed to Naples."

Jan Stephenson

Especially Honorary Chairman David Gibson, also the president of Sarah Coventry Jewelry.

"The time and location of "The Sarah Coventry" couldn't be better," Gibson said. "The pro's love to play at Round Hill and with a September date our tournament could well determine the top money winner for the 1977 tour."

Eileen Van Tyle, spokesperson for The Sarah Coventry out of upper New York State, said SC hopes to establish a long lasting relationship with Round Hill.

"We wanted a golf tournament in Northern California," she said, "and that's why we chose Round Hill. Round Hill is the place.

"We want a nice relationship with Round Hill, too. We want the tournament to be here years to come.

"This should prove to be a real exciting event. We will expect to have national television coverage."

Tyle noted Children's Home Society and The Coustau Society, which benefits from the tournament, as being instrumental in making "this tournament a success.

"We're supporting fine charities," Tyle said. "Children's Home Society placed 38,000 children in Foster Homes."

NOTES. The tournament will be comprised of a four-day event, 72 holes, with a one-day 18 hole celebrity pro-amateur tourney.

Heat's still going up. Insulate.
The cost of heating a house is still going up.
Hot air rises, too. And that's why the attic is often where most home heat is lost. What's worse, you may have attic insulation that is inadequate, and not even be aware of it.
Just insulating an attic to R-19, the recommended standard, can save up to 25% of the heat you use. And you'll enjoy greater comfort.
The cost of insulating an attic is probably less than you think. For instance, if you get a qualified contractor such as a member of the Insulation Contractors Association to do it, in a typical California house it should cost about $300 to $400. Even less if you do it yourself.
So send for our free insulation booklet. It tells you, in easy-to-understand words and pictures, all you need to know about insulation. It tells you how to check whether your attic insulation is adequate, and if not, what to do about it and how to do it.
PG&E wants to help you save energy and keep your bills from going out of sight. So get the facts. What you don't know can cost you. And that's not hot air.

Planners regulate movies

PLEASANTON — If this city ever becomes a movie capital like Hollywood, it will be up to the planning commission.

That honorable body rules on conditional use permits and motion picture production has just been required to have a conditional use permit to operate in industrial park zones.

The change was not prompted by some latter day Cecil B. DeMille or Mitchell Brother knocking on the city's door; it was just a routine part of an overhaul of that section of the zoning ordinance completed by the planning staff and okayed by the city council.

Other changes in the law ban the processing of asbestos, an item which got press coverage when that ban was discussed; and put on conditional use permits the location of railroad stations, bus depots, manufacturing of cosmetics, and drugs, and vitreous china table and kitchen items.

One planning department source speculated that noise from the stacking of dishes might have prompted the scrutiny of the china industry. No opposition was reported from the china lobby.

The Prime is prime

Manager and resident sheriff, Norm Strehle of Cactus Jack's, is currently recommending the restaurant's Petite Cut Prime Rib dinner for the diffident appetite. The meal consists of prime rib, baked potato, french bread and use of either the soup or salad bar. Norm also reminds everyone that table service is now in effect at the restaurant. The customer places his order at the front counter, takes a table, and the order will be brought to him. Cactus Jack's is at 3571 First St. in Livermore. They are open seven days a week, 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., serving breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Congress hears bid on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress Wednesday night to approve a national energy policy that raises prices and taxes for energy and automobiles to encourage conservation of vanishing resources.

Carter told the senators and congressmen, already divided by allegiance to different regions and interests, that he has learned why a comprehensive energy policy has not already been developed.

"It is a thankless job," Carter said, "but it is our job, and I believe we have a fair, wellbalanced and effective plan to present to you."

He urged enactment of legislation that would tax gas-guzzling autos anywhere from $449 for 1978 low-mileage models up to $2,488 for 1985.

And he asked the lawmakers to approve a plan that would add about 7 cents a gallon to the cost of gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products by 1980 through a series of taxes on crude oil.

Carter's program threatened further gasoline taxes starting at 5 cents a gallon in 1979 and rising as high as 50 cents a gallon if U.S. gasoline consumption is not held down.

U.S gasoline prices are now about 60 cents a gallon for regular, including 4 cents of federal tax. By comparison, the price in Great Britain is around $1.60 a gallon.

Carter emphasized that fairness was one of his chief aims and that "the energy industry should not reap large unearned profits" from the nation's energy crisis.

"None of our people must make an unfair sacrifice. None should reap an unfair benefit," Carter said.

He urged that "individual accounting be required from energy companies for production, refining, distribution and marketing — separately for domestic and foreign operations.

"Strict enforcement of the antitrust laws can be based on this data, and may prevent the need for divestiture," Carter said, referring to proposals to break up the major energy companies.

Carter said his program also would seek to soften its own impact on particular segments of the public.

For example, he proposed using part of the Highway Trust Fund to compensate states for the revenues they will lose as declining gasoline consumption cuts into state gasoline tax income.

Carter's policies were aimed primarily at saving energy and developing the use of coal, nuclear power and solar energy.

"We can never increase our production of oil and natural gas by enough to meet our demand," he said, in effect announcing the death notice of a century of petroleum-fueled growth.

Earlier, a top-ranking Carter aide said the average American's standard of living would not be lowered by the President's energy package.

The aide, who asked that he not be identified, told a standing-room audience of reporters that householders who heat with fuel oil would receive direct rebates of their extra fuel costs.

Carter said his administration will check data from oil and natural gas companies "so that we will know their true production, supplies, reserves and profits."

In one of the few specific points of his address, Carter said that "citizens who insist on driving large, unnecessarily powerful cars must expect to pay more for that luxury."

But Carter said a tough energy program is essential because "the oil and natural gas we rely on for 75 per cent of our energy are running out."

He said domestic production has been dropping about 6 per cent a year while oil imports have doubled over the past 5 years.

"It is a problem we will not solve in the next few years, and it is likely to get progressively worse through the rest of this century," Carter warned.

"We must not be selfish or timid if we hope to have a decent world for our children and grandchildren. We simply must balance our demand for energy with our rapidly shrinking resources.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I can't convince my teenagers that listening to records at top volumne is destroying their hearing and my nerves — to say nothing of our neighbors' nerves. They've lived in the city all their lives and sometimes I wonder if they are simply immune to noise, since they've never known anything else. I grew up in a small town and knew the thrill of listening to birds and hearing the sounds of creepers and crickets. I doubt if my children could hear these sounds even if they had the opportunity. I don't know what this loud noise will do to them or me but I do know, we all spend much too much time quarreling or shouting over it. — V.T.

DEAR V.T.: You may have to be really firm and establish a rule that unless the youngsters keep the sound level at a reasonable volume, they will have to turn off the music. They may consider this harsh, but it's important for you, for your neighbors and for them.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that more than 16 million people in the United States already suffer loss of hearing from noise and that another 40 million are exposed to potential hazards without even knowing it. Noise pollution is becoming a top danger.

Your children might be moved by the fact that some scientists feel that noise — such as loud rock music — could lead to infrequent sexual activity.

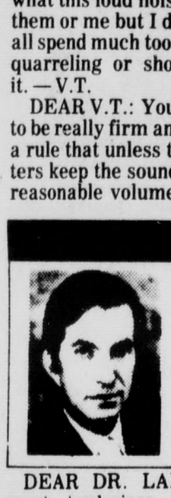
Remind them that any number of studies indicate that exposure to noise lowers a person's tolerance for and ability to cope with frustration. It can lead to irritability and irrational behavior. If you can't get them to cooperate by being considerate of others, you might spur them on with thoughts of saving their love life.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Whenever I have an argument with my husband, I go into a deep depression and end up with a migraine headache. Since this happens about every three weeks, it's not a minor problem. I have a difficult time expressing anger and when I do, I feel so guilty about it that I tend to injure myself, fall downstairs, trip on carpets, or have minor auto accidents. Would a punching bag solve my problems? — R.D.

DEAR R.D.: It might help temporarily but it wouldn't be a permanent healthy solution. Beating a punching bag isn't going to give you new insight into your problems, nor is it going to enlighten your husband. I believe talking out a problem and learning how to express resentment in a way that will lead to a solution is a more positive approach.

If you suffer from depression after an argument, the chances are you haven't learned how to argue constructively. The result is that you're turning your anger against yourself rather than against the problem. Often, people punish themselves for anger and hate through mental illness, and I include migraine headaches and some accidents in this category.

Learn how to get angry and to express that anger. I'd guess the reason you're depressed after an argument is that you either are not arguing about what's really troubling you, or you're repressing and misdirecting most of your anger. Anger in a marraige can be used to improve relations if both partners know how to channel their feelings so they serve, ratter than injure them. Each must recognize that anger and hate don't necessarily destroy love. These emotions can and do exist side by side.



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — If meat tenderizer tenderizes raw meat before it is eaten, wouldn't it also tenderize the lining of the stomach after it is eaten?

DEAR READER — No. Your stomach is protected from its own acid digestive juice and any such material by a thick mucus layer over its cells. That is why a person may get duodenal ulcers in the small intestine just outside the stomach but is far less likely to get ulcers inside the stomach (the common usage of the term "stomach ulcers" is usually incorrect as the ulcer is usually in the duodenum portion of the small intestine). The small intestine is not coated with a protective layer of mucus.

To give you more information on how the stomach works and the acid-digestive juice role in ulcers I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-5, Ulcers — Duodenal, Stomach. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a chalazion on my right eye which was cut twice but it still does not seem to go away. Now I am getting one on my left eye. I have been putting both hot and cold compresses on but nothing seems to helps. Can you please tell me what causes them? Is there anything else I can do to get rid of them? Is there any danger that this could turn into cancer?

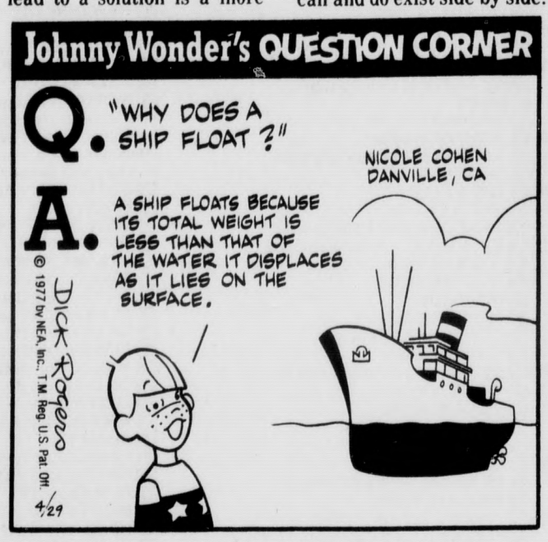
DEAR READER — A chalazion is a small buckshot sized lump at the edge of the eyelid. It is caused by inflammation of the meibomian gland of the eyelid.

What are meibomian glands? They are specialized sebaceous glands in the thickened rim of the eyelid. They drain to the free edge of the eyelid and literally lubricate the edge. This prevents tears from flowing readily out of the eyes unless there is an overproduction of tears. In this way they are essential in keeping the eye properly moisturized.

The original inflammation may not be from any infection and the little lump may be a true tumor — somewhat like a cyst that develops from a plugged sebaceous gland of your skin from a black head formation that never drains. If the chalazion becomes infected it may form small amounts of pus. It usually points to the inner surface of the eyelid as opposed to a sty.

When the lump is large or points the doctor may incise the area just enough to expel the small mass of necrotic material.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "WHY DOES A SHIP FLOAT?"
NICOLE COHEN
DANVILLE, CA
A. A SHIP FLOATS BECAUSE ITS TOTAL WEIGHT IS LESS THAN THAT OF THE WATER IT DISPLACES AS IT LIES ON THE SURFACE.
© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
DICK ROGERS
4/29

A big ship weighs thousands of tons, yet it floats easily on the surface of the ocean.

The Greek mathematician Archimedes discovered the principle that explains why a ship floats. He found that an object placed in water is held up by a force equal to the weight of the water that the object displaces, or occupies.

If you try to push a beach ball underwater, you can feel the water pushing back. This upward push on a floating object is called "buoyancy."

When a ship is in the water its big hollow hull pushes aside an equal volume of water. The weight it seems to lose is equal to the weight of the water it displaces.

The buoyancy produced by this displacement supports the ship.

Thus, even with its big engines and its passengers, the ship weighs less than the water that would take up the same space — and so it floats.

Shipbuilders design ships so that their total weight is less than that of the water they displace.

In Aesop's fable of the grasshopper and the ant, the grasshopper wasted his substance in riotous living in summer and starved in winter while the frugal ant lived happily for years.

This doesn't always work out in a bridge game.

East wins the first trick with his ace of clubs and the frugal ant plays his tiny three spot. The ant is sure to take the next two clubs as well as two diamonds, two spades and one heart. In addition, he should be able to find an eighth trick somewhere — but the all-important ninth won't be forthcoming.

Now look at the spendthrift grasshopper. He drops the king or queen of clubs under the ace!

Later on he will cash his ace and king of diamonds and king of clubs and lead a low club. Dummy's 10 of clubs will become an entry for North's last three diamonds and the grasshopper South will pick up at least nine tricks, which is a lot better than the ant's seven or eight.

Merit Sparks Low Tar Boom!

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco seen as major factor in unprecedented smoker move to low tar.

Since its introduction, MERIT has become one of the most popular new cigarettes in twenty years.

A popularity largely responsible for a significant growth in low tar smoking.

The reason: 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers extra flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The kind of flavor smokers can switch to—and stick with.

Here are the taste-test results which show why smokers are switching to MERIT. If you smoke, you'll be interested.

100's: 12 mg. 'tar,' 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

REGULAR and MENTHOL

Tests Prove Taste

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar! Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
